Ljubljana 12.1.2003

Dear FEMS colleague, dear Friend,

We take great pleasure in sending you the information about the 19th international ICFMA Symposium - FOOD MICRO 2004 from September 12 - 16, 2004. It is an honour to host this important Symposium in Slovenia, country that some of you already know as a congress destination. The Organising committee decided to invite microbiologists related to food and health to Portorož, one of the most important Slovenian tourist centres on the Adriatic coast, that attracts many guests through its mild climate, sandy beaches, natural medicine remedies and long tourist tradition. Portorož also has a status of Convention City with a high quality of conference services.

The morning part of the scientific programme has already been settled. However, in the next month we will select contributions for the afternoon oral presentations and build an attractive programme from the abstracts. We expect to select around 60 presentations.

We would like to invite you to visit the Symposium website www.foodmicro2004.org containing updated information on programme, and call you attention to submit abstracts among your society members who could be interested in this happening.

Please inform them, the closing date for abstracts is February 15th 2004.

However, If you will have chance personally to join us, we will be pleased to have you in Portorož in September 2004!

Peter Raspor
President of the Organising Committee
