Road show seminars 2006 in 'Studying the Web and its use'

The concept of a 'road show seminar' means that a team of 2-3 senior researchers of high international status will visit 2-3 Nordic-Baltic sites, each covering an adequate region, with a tailored set of lectures and tutorials on a pre-selected research area, as well as supplying improved supervision and consultation. The idea is in a cost-effective manner to provide research knowledge and experience out to the local research groups and doctoral students within Nordic-Baltic regions. Travel and accommodation costs are thus minimized.

In 2006 the aim of the road show is to present new developments in Web studies including research on user-created web spaces (e.g., blogs, wikis, social bookmarking and folksonomies), users' seeking behaviour on the Web, as well as statistical methods for measuring web phenomena, also called webometrics.
